The initiative aimed at first-year B.Com students during the academic year 2021-2022, focusing on Banking Theory and Practice. The activity, conducted under metric 2.3.1, took place on July 12, 2022.

The event saw active participation from 15 students who presented their seminars, offering insights into Banking Theory and Practice. The collaborative efforts of both the organizer and the participants contributed to the academic enrichment of the Commerce department.

The key outcomes of the activity include fostering a student-centric learning approach and enhancing presentation skills among the participants. The engagement of 15 students in delivering informative seminars showcases the success of this student-centric initiative. Dr. T. Madhusudana's leadership, combined with the support of Principal Dr. G. Ravindranath, played a crucial role in ensuring the educational success of the college-level Student Seminars in Banking Theory and Practice.

Brief Description with Outcomes:

N. Reddy Basha, a Lecturer in the Commerce department at Government College for Men (A), Kadapa, organized an insightful activity titled "Student Centric Method: Student Seminars" for third-year B.Com General students. The event took place offline at the college level on April 25, 2023, during the academic year 2022-2023.

The activity focused on enhancing student engagement and understanding through a seminar on the topic of "Marginal Cost Statement." With 23 student participants and one faculty member actively involved, the session provided a platform for students to showcase their knowledge and communication skills.

The key outcome of the activity was the effective communication of the topic by the participating students. This approach aligned with the student-centric method, emphasizing active involvement and knowledge dissemination. The seminar not only enriched the academic experience of the participants but also contributed to the overall learning culture within the Commerce department. The support of Principal Dr. G. Ravindranath ensured the seamless execution of the student-centric seminar, emphasizing the college's commitment to holistic student development.

Brief Description with Outcomes:

Smt.P. Manju Bhargavi, a Lecturer in the Commerce Department at Government College for Men (A), Kadapa, took the lead in organizing a student seminar aimed at second-year B.Com students. This seminar, conducted offline on April 27, 2023, as part of the "Student Centric Method: Student Seminars," focused on the crucial topic of "Income from House Property."

The seminar witnessed active participation, with a total of 43 students from the Commerce Department engaging in the college-level event. The collaborative efforts of both students and faculty, guided by Principal, contributed to the success of the seminar during the academic year 2022-2023.

The primary objective of the seminar was to enhance students' understanding of income generation from house properties. The outcomes were aligned with the seminar's title, as students gained valuable insights into the intricacies and principles associated with income derived from house properties. This initiative demonstrated the commitment of Government College for Men (A), Kadapa, to providing quality education and fostering an environment conducive to meaningful student engagement and learning.

Brief Description with Outcomes:

Smt. N. Lavanya, a Lecturer in the Commerce Department at Government College for Men (A), Kadapa, orchestrated an enriching activity for first-year B.Com students titled "Student Centric Method: Student Seminars." The event, focused on student seminars, took place offline on July 20, 2023, during the 2022-2023 academic year. The objective was to implement student-centric methodologies, fostering active student involvement in the learning process. With an exclusive target audience of first-year B.Com students, the activity aimed to provide a platform for students to showcase their knowledge and presentation skills. The event witnessed the participation of 18 students, emphasizing the intimate and focused nature of the student seminars. The key outcomes aligning with the title and purpose of the activity include enhanced presentation skills and the promotion of a student-centric learning environment. This initiative, while modest in scale, contributes positively to the academic development of the participating students, aligning with the broader goals of fostering interactive and engaging educational practices.

Brief Description with Outcomes:

Smt. N. Lavanya, a Lecturer in the Commerce Department at Government College for Men (A), Kadapa, organized the "Student Centric Method: Student Seminars" for B.Com students in their second year. The offline event, focusing on student seminars, occurred on November 2, 2023, during the 2022-2023 academic year.

The target audience for this activity was B.Com students in their second year, with a specific emphasis on adopting student-centric methodologies. While the brief description is not provided, the nature of the event suggests an interactive platform for students to showcase their knowledge and presentation skills.

With a modest participation of 18 students, the Student Seminars aimed at encouraging active student involvement in the learning process. The event's key outcome lies in fostering a student-centric approach, enhancing presentation skills, and promoting a collaborative learning environment among the B.Com students. This initiative aligns with the broader goal of cultivating self-expression and academic engagement among participants, contributing positively to their educational journey.

Brief Description with Outcomes:

Dr. V. Krishna Veni, a Lecturer in the Commerce department at Government College for Men (A), Kadapa, organized an engaging educational initiative for first-year B.Com Honours (General) students. The activity, titled "Student Centric Method: Student Seminars," took the form of offline student seminars conducted at the college level on 08/11/2023. Principal Dr. G. Ravindranath's unwavering support played a pivotal role in ensuring the success of this student-centric approach.

The event, falling under the category of 2.3.1 in the academic year 2023-2024, witnessed the active participation of 7 students and 1 faculty member. Dr. V. Krishna Veni's role as the organizer, coupled with the backing of Principal, underscored the college's commitment to fostering interactive and student-driven learning methodologies within the Commerce department.

The key outcomes of the "Student Centric Method: Student Seminars" initiative were centered around empowering students to take on a more active role in their academic journey. Through presenting seminars, students not only gained confidence in public speaking but also honed their research and presentation skills. Dr. V. Krishna Veni's efforts, supported by Principal, successfully contributed to creating an environment that encourages student participation, critical thinking, and academic excellence within the Commerce department at Government College for Men (A), Kadapa.
